WORLD MARATHON MAJORS

TOKYO BOSTON LONDON BERLIN CHICAGO NEW YORK

World Marathon Majors (WMM) is a Grand Slam of marathon running, which started in 2006. In creating the World Marathon Majors, the organizers recognized an opportunity to advance the sport, raise awareness of its athletes and increase the level of interest in elite racing among running enthusiasts.

In addition to original five races (Boston, London, Berlin, Chicago, New York), Tokyo Marathon has joined as its 6th race in 2013.

The champions of the WMM Series will be the man and woman who score the greatest number of points from Qualifying Races, which includes the IAAF World Championships Marathon and the Olympic Marathon, as well as above six races, during the two-year scoring period.
